Statement to Revd. Mr. Wells.

Whereas another Society is formed in Durfield and some of the Congregational Society have united with them and a number of others have signed off in consequence of high taxes, and by their having left said society the taxes on those that remain and belong to said Congregational society is more than the members of said society think they can hereafter pay, and wishing to keep up said Congregational society, humbly request their Pastor the Revd. Nathaniel Wells to reduce his salary from four hundred Dollars to three hundred Dollars to take effect from and after the first day of March next; said sum of three hundred Dollars to be paid semi annually: the members of said society believing that if their Pastor the Revd. Nathaniel Wells comply with their request as aforesaid it will be the means of keeping said Congregational society together and induce many to return who have left on account of the highness of the taxes solely; voted that the foregoing be submitted to our Revd. Pastor as aforesaid and that he be requested to make an answer in writing as soon as may be.

Commtee. to wait on Mr. Wells.

Adjourn.t Voted that this meeting be adjourned for three quarters of an hour, — —

Met Resp.t of Comm.ee met accordingly

The foregoing Committee verbally reported that the Rev.d Mr. Wells would personally attend and make his communication. The Rev.d Mr. Wells attended and gave his answer relative to a reduction of his salary in writing as follows, Rev.d Mr. Wells' Communication "To the Congregational religious Society in the town of Deerfield, the following observations are respectfully submitted, by the subscriber, their Pastor.

The relation between a gospel minister and the church and people over whom he is settled is important and solemn; and ought not to be broken for slight or insufficient causes. In an especial manner, a minister, who has an affectionate regard to the welfare of his people, and seeks them rather than theirs, will not feel himself at liberty to desert them, unless urged by the most trying necessity.

Hoping that I feel such an attachment to the people of this town, I conceive it expedient to make the following remarks, in answer to the proposal which has been made, for an abatement of my salary. Most willingly would I consent to any abatement, which, in my apprehension, can be consistent with duty, under existing circumstances.

In deciding the question of duty, however, a minister is bound to consider that he, in common with his parishioners, is under obligations to his family, as well as to do what in him lies to comply with the injunction of the Apostle, "Owe no man any thing but to love one another". He is bound also very seriously to consider whether, with the proposed abatement, he has reason to hope that his circumstances will be such that he can be useful in his station.

Having taken these things into consideration, I did conceive, until the latter part of the last spring, that it would not be consistent with duty to relinquish any part of my salary, inasmuch as the price of things, though it is at present low, is ever fluctuating, and may shortly be as high as it has been at any time since I was settled. Taking into consideration, however, the state of the Society, and the danger of its being broken up, were they to be left without a Minister, I have conceived it my duty, at least to make the trial, whether I can continue with you and be useful with a less sum, and I can truly say, that so far as respects myself and family, I should much rather receive a less sum, willingly contributed, than a larger that should be unpleasant and burdensome.

I have not made the preceding remarks through any reluctance to make any abatement that can be consistent with duty; but I have made them because I really doubt whether I can continue and be useful among you with the proposed abatement. But I am willing to make the trial and to do all in my power to serve you with it. But at the same time I wish that it may be distinctly understood, that if I find that I cannot be useful among you with such an abatement, I shall expect you to be willing, either to fulfill or relinquish the original contract.

Having made these observations to guard against future misunderstanding, I now consent to the proposed abatement for the next year; and also after next year, unless I should be under the necessity to give notice that I cannot live with it. But I hope better things than that I shall be under such necessity; especially as I have found by experience that I live among a people who have been punctual in the performance of their engagements to me; and have not been wanting in instances of generosity and unpromised favors.

For these things I take this opportunity to express my unfeigned gratitude. And hoping most sincerely that I shall be able to continue with you; and that I may be yet instrumental in promoting your temporal and eternal welfare "I commend you to God, and to the word of his grace which is able to build you up, and give you an inheritance among all them that are sanctified".

Deerfield December 18th. 1821.

Voted that the foregoing answer from the Rev.d Nathaniel Wells be recorded in the Records of this town.

Report of Schl. Commn. The Committee appointed last year to visit the several schools in this town made the following report,

"The Committee chosen to visit the schools in this town make the following report to their Constituents.

They have visited all the Schools in town except two; but not not so often as they think might be useful to the Scholars. The state of the schools, in general, has been found to be good; but still in most

most of them, there is room for a very considerable degree of improvement. Your Committee have been gratified in their visits, generally, by the attention to order which has been observed in schools, but they indulge the hope, that both teachers and pupils will be more and more sensible of the importance of a strict attention to this branch of their duty.

In all the schools which have been visited attention is paid to instruction in reading, spelling, writing and arithmetic; in most of them English grammar is taught; in several of them attention is paid to the study of geography; and in some of them a few scholars have attended to the study of history and rhetoric; besides one or two individuals who have attended to trigonometry surveying and the like. In some of the schools a pleasing progress has been made in the study of English grammar and geography, as well as in the other branches which have been mentioned.

Your Committee are duply sensible of the beneficial tendency of frequent visits to the several schools, though they are conscious that they have not visited them so often as might have been useful.

To remedy the evil of such neglect, they take the liberty to recommend the appointment of a larger Committee, to consist of persons in different parts of the town: and to make it the duty of the several district Committees, appointed to procure instructors, to call on the visiting Committee, as soon as may be, after their respective schools begin, both in summer and winter, and also a short time before the close of such schools; and that the said district Committees give notice to the respective teachers, by them employed, of the time appointed for visiting their respective schools.

All which is respectfully submitted by which report was read and accepted.

Range ways. Voted that the Selectmen be authorized and empowered to sell or exchange the Range ways belonging to this town.

Maintenance of Paupers. Voted that the Poor of this town who now are or may be chargeable to the town the year ensuing including those who are bound out by contract be set up at vendue and that the person to whom they may be struck off shall give bond with sureties to keep and maintain them in one place and family, and to indemnify and save harmless the town from all charges of every kind which may happen and arise in consequence of the maintenance of said Poor in sickness and in health, and that the Selectmen take an inventory of all property belonging and relating to the Poor aforesaid, and that the same or the value thereof be returned at the expiration of the year, and that the person bidding off said Poor unless he gives bond to comply with the conditions herein specified shall liable to pay the town of Deerfield the sum of seventy five Dollars; and also voted that the person to whom the said Poor may be struck off shall keep the Children at school when a school is kept in the school district to which he belongs for the term of four months provided a school is kept in his district that length of time: and also voted that payment for the maintenance of said Poor shall be made as follows, namely, one fourth part in three months, one fourth part in six months, one fourth part in nine months, and the remaining fourth part in twelve months.

Agreably to the foregoing vote the Poor of this town were set up to the lowest Bidder and were struck off to Timothy Goodhue at three hundred and ninety six Dollars.

Voted that the foregoing bid by Timothy Goodhue be accepted, and also voted that Benjamin Fellows Jun.r and Abraham Prescott be accepted as his bondsmen.

Highway. Whereas a public highway was laid out by the Selectmen of Deerfield the 23d. day of March A.D. 1774 and recorded Deerfield Records Vol. 1. pp. 258. 259 which highway began on the Range-way between the first and second Ranges in said Deerfield at the road that (then) ran from Daniel Ladds to Capt. John Robinsons, now) from Deerfield meeting house to Raymond meeting house thence easterly 22 rods wide by the house of Mr. John Brown to Nottingham line. And at a town meeting held the 18th. day of March 1800 it was voted that said highway should be discontinued and considered to be a Drift way to pass by Gates. And whereas many persons living on said road and other inhabitants of Deerfield have allowed the Selectmen to lay out and open the aforesaid road as a public highway which petition was laid before the town at their last annual meeting and was there voted that the Selectmen if they thought necessary be authorized to lay out the same. Therefore We the Subscribers Selectmen of Deerfield having examined said Drift way and believing it necessary that the same should be laid out and opened as a public highway; have on this twenty second day of December in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and twenty three laid out said highway as laid out and returned by the Selectmen of Deerfield March 23d. 1774 to be a public highway forever; and we consider the satisfaction made in the former return to the persons through whose land the said highway was laid as sufficient satisfaction for the Owners of said land.

Report respecting Schools. The Rev. N. Wells made the following report respecting the schools in this town, viz.

"The following report respecting the state of the schools in this town, from March 1824 to March 1825 is submitted by the Subscriber.

"In ten of the districts schools were kept in the summer, eight of them by females, two by masters. All the schools have been supplied with masters during some part of the winter term. Eleven of the schools have been visited. In two or three instances there is a deficiency of returns. By supplying this deficiency as nearly as could be done from former returns, it appears that the whole number of scholars who have attended the several schools during some part of the year past is seven hundred and thirty eight; — the average number that attended is about four sevenths of the whole number. Beside reading and spelling there are four hundred and eleven who have attended to writing, one hundred and fifty three to arithmetic, two hundred and eight to English Grammar, one hundred and twenty to Geography, seven to Rhetoric, ten to History, five to Natural Philosophy, four to Surveying, two to Chemistry, and five to the Latin Language.

"Much praise is due to most of the Instructors for their unwearied exertions in bringing forward their pupils in the various branches of study to which they have been attending. Much praise should also be given to a large number of the scholars, who by their own exertions and diligence, have done much to render the efforts of their teachers successful. In most of the schools commendable attention continues to be given to writing, and keeping their manuscripts neat and clean; the natural consequence of which is, that a respectable number of scholars have exhibited very decent specimens of penmanship. Thorough work continues to be made in most of the schools in committing to memory the rules in Arithmetic, and the answers to questions in Grammar, Geography and other branches of Science to which they have attended.

"It is conceived that a very considerable advantage has been derived, and may hereafter be derived, from a practice introduced by the teachers of our schools; I mean the practice of visiting one another's schools.

It

It is not only a stimulus both to teachers and scholars but, as almost all Instructors have something peculiar in their mode of instruction: it is probable that considerable benefit may be derived by the teachers themselves, by noticing these peculiarities, and profiting by them in the government and instruction of their own schools.

"On the whole, though there is still much room for improvement; and it is still desirable that many of the scholars should be more careful to read loud and distinctly, and with more exact attention to the pauses and to the sense; and, more especially, that very many of the scholars should be more careful to speak loud and distinctly when they answer questions; — — and though there is still much room for improvement in writing, and other branches that are attended to; yet the general appearance of the schools through the town is encouraging, and exhibits pleasing evidence of progressive improvement.

"All which is respectfully submitted by

Nath.l Wells

Deerfield March 8th 1825"

The foregoing Report was read and accepted.

School Com. Voted, that the Rev.d Nathaniel Wells be requested to visit and instruct the several schools in this town, and that he be allowed payment for those services; and also voted that each school district choose a Committee whose duty it shall be to attend, gratis, with the Rev.d Mr. Wells when he shall visit the schools in their respective districts.

Rep.t School Committe — feel an interest in their happiness and prosperity. On a proper attention to the early education of youth, is based the future destinies of our country. This too is the support of that happy form of government which so peculiarly distinguishes this happy republic. Hence that marked solicitude which is so often manifested by parents to ascertain the improvement of our schools.

To answer this desire in some degree, the following report is respectfully submitted so far as they are capable; judging by an examination of schools from March 1826 to March 1827.

Your committee beg leave to suggest that their report must necessarily be imperfect from the circumstance that the schools, generally speaking, have been visited but once; and from the schools in Districts No.s 4 & 5 we have no information to impart, as we were never informed of their close.

So particularly is probably highly necessary in our school, though in every instance we cannot. If not answer, in some degree, the object of our appointments, and especially, if we consult the profit of the scholars, we must necessarily notice some of the most apparent deficiences in some, while, with peculiar pleasure, we extend to others of a more pleasing and interesting nature. Perhaps the examination of our schools and the strictness of improvement have been equal to those of any former year. Still we have to regret that in some instances there has been an apparent neglect in attending to the proper order and discipline of the schools; and, in some, we fear there has been a want of the necessary literary qualifications, so indispensibly necessary for a teacher of youth. Your committee have noticed with some peculiar feeling of interest the state of the younger classes in our schools, and while, we would suggest a fear that in some instances there has been an apparent neglect of the younger scholars, we would also recommend this subject to the immediate attention of the Instructors of youth. Your committee would further take the liberty of suggesting the importance of having such teachers as are well qualified for the performance of so important a trust; and probably a course a course might be pur-

Your committee would furthermore avail themselves of this opportunity of expressing their regret that parents so much neglect their schools as not to visit them especially on days appointed for examination; and would recommend this subject to their immediate attention.

Annexed to this report is the following statement of the present condition of the different schools; the average number of scholars, and the different branches to which they have attended.

All which is respectfully submitted for the consideration of the inhabitants of this town.

Nathan Wells
James Burnaby

Supplying the deficiencies of some returns the present year by reference to former returns, the whole number of scholars, that have attended the several schools in the course of the year past is 599 —

The average number of scholars is rather less than three fifths of the whole number.

Report of School Committe — "Impressed with the importance attached to the establishment and promotion of the system of free schools, as the effectual nurseries of our civil and religious liberties, your Committe to whom was committed the arduous and pleasing duty of visiting the schools beg leave to present the following report.

The present system of free schools is among the first and most important institutions of our country. It involves the interest and happiness of a large portion of our youth, who would otherwise be deprived of the means of valuing and defending their rights; and though their utility involves much sedulous care, both on the part of the examining committe and parents, and very considerable expense; yet these are of minor considerations when compared with the ultimate object, the general diffusion of knowledge.

These are indispenibly necessary to a republican form of government. Nor can the object be so well answered by any other possible means whatever. Wrest these from us, and we are at once plunged into despotism and ruin. To these are we indebted for those seeds from wich have sprung the most efficient supporters of our constitution, the citadel of our rights. Many who now stand foremost in defending civil and religious liberty, received their first impulse under their fostering hand.

Our happy government, which affords equal rights and privileges to all classes of the community, would become vulnerable at every pore if these through the neglect of Parents should sink into disrepute. Can you civilize and tame the savage of the forest without the culture of his mind? Or can you maintain that elevated grade which you now hold among the nations of the earth without scattering with a liberal hand the rudiments of science?

Report &c. And do not these institutions the only efficient means, by wich the brightest geniuses of our country will be raised from the shades of poverty, and shine as the firm and able defenders of the rights of man? True without these institutions the rich may educate their children: but where is our boasted freedom, and where the defence of free born rights? Soon should we retire from the pole; and wear the galling yoke of slavery and oppression. We will not predict but we do not hesitate to say that, in our opinion when these institutions are sacrificed, we draw over our political and religious horizon a gloom as dark as midnight.

And your committe would humbly ask, is there no exertion necessary to be made for the improvement of our schools? Your laudable exertions heretofore, we trust, have not failed in accomplishing much for our youth. Our wise Legislature have not forgotten this subject, as their late acts abundantly testify. The resolve of the town last March respecting the due qualifications of teachers has been, in most instances, strictly regarded; and the happy result has, already, in some measure be realized.

As it respects the state of our schools, we beg leave to observe, the committee have spared no pains in fulfilling their appointment, so far as health and other intervening circumstances would allow.

Your schools have all, excepting one, been visited twice, from wich we received no notice of its commencement.

A better attention has been paid to the smaller classes of learners than in some former years. In many instances, not only individuals but whole schools have manifested a noble spirit of emulation, and have made very considerable improvement. We feel ourselves warranted in saying that the schools in general are rising, and feel a more general interest in obtaining a useful education.

And it would afford the highest gratification to your committee were they able to say as much in every instance.

Your committee would again avail themselves of this opportunity of recommending to parents the importance of visiting their schools, cooperating with the teachers in every exertion to promote their usefulness.

Some attention has been paid the past year, and some exertions made by your committee to induce the schollars to furnish themselves with books.

Report &c. In some schools, there has been heretofore, a great deficiency. A good system has been introduced, wich if carried into effect will, we think, be of lasting benefit. In doing which we have had no other motive but the good of the schools. But as the Legislature of the State have taken cognisance of this subject it will be unnecessary for your committee to make any further remark. The schools have been larger this year than the last in general. The following statement will exhibit the number of schollars attending the past year, and the various branches to wich they have attended.

Town Meeting At a legal town meeting duly notified and holden at Deerfield in said County on Tuesday December the ninth A. D. 1828

Moderator Voted by ballot that Thomas Brown be moderator

Voted that the report of the Committee appointed to examine the Parsonage House belonging to the Congregational Society last November be read, which was read accordingly.

Report The committee appointed to examine the buildings on the Parsonage have attended to that duly and report that the house needs new silling, clapboarding on the North side and ends, flooring in two rooms, window frames and sashes for 24 windows, 3 new doors and the chimney repaired.

The barn needs one new sill floor and crib for stable, some new doors, the boarding nailed and underpining repaired.

The small building at the north side of the house and hog sty are (in the opinion of your committee) past repairing.

They therefore recommend that the shed at the North West corner of the barn should be fitted for a hogsty and that a new building be erected to supply the place of the old one adjoining the house one story high, with a shed extending thirty feet by fourteen from the north east corner of the small house towards the shed at the barn.

They also recommend the construction of a role way at the S. E. corner and end of the old house; and (as there appears to be stone on the premises suitable for splitting) that the house should be underpinned with split stone.

As it is impossible to ascertain all the necessary repairs until the business is commenced your recommend that the heavy articles and sash should be contracted for to be delivered on the premises in season for use and that the repairs be made under the direction of an agent chosen for that purpose, which is respectfully ~~submitted~~

Gilbert Chadwick for the Committee.

Repairs Voted that the Parsonage House be repaired

Voted that the repairs on the Parsonage House and the additional buildings to the same be made agreeable to the report of the committee.

Sum On motion of Nathaniel Dearborn Jr voted that the sum of three hundred dollars be raised to make the repairs and the addition buildings.

Agent Voted that there be one agent chosen to superintend the repairs and the erection of the additional buildings.

Voted that the preceding vote be reconsidered.

Committee Voted that a committee of five be nominated by the moderator to nominate a committee of three to superintend said repairs and erecting said additional buildings.

The committee nominated by the moderator were Jacob Freese, Gilbert Chadwick, Henry White, Jonathan Dowst, and Timothy M. Pearsons.

Voted to accept of said committee.

The committee nominated by the moderator reported That Thomas D. Rawlins be the acting agent and Jacob Freese, and Gilbert Chadwick be advising agents.

Report of School Committee — Voted that the Report of the School Committee be read.

"We wose names are underwritten, having been appointed, together with the Rev James Barnaby, a Committee to visit, inspect and examine the schools in this town make the following report respecting said schools.

In a country where improvements in the arts and sciences, and in almost every thing which is useful or ornamental are progressing with a rapidity equalled only by that of the unparallelled increase of its population; - in a nation the stability of whose excellent form of government in a very peculiar manner, depends on the inteligence, and virtue, and extensive information of the people at large, every thing which relates to the education of the rising generation must be highly interesting to all who are actuated by the true spirit of patriotism. If any nation on the globe has reason above all others to pray with the devout Psalmist "that their sons may be as plants grown up in their youth; that their daughters may be as corner stones polished after the similitude of a palace, it is the highly favoured nation, which enjoys so many rich blessings within the bounds of these United States. It is therefore, with no small degree of pleasure, that your Committee are able to report a progressive course of improvement in the method of instruction adopted in our schools.

Too long have our youth been permitted to burden their memories with a profusion of mere words, without duly attending to their meaning or forming any distinct ideas of the things for which these words stand. The advantage is comparatively small if schollars commit to memory whole pages, or even whole volumes, unless they obtain a clear understanding of the ideas and instruction intended to be communicated by the words thus treasured up in their memories.

A few sentences clearly understood when thus treasured up are of more value than whole pages or chapters committed to memory without distinctly understanding their meaning.

There are several books lately introduced into schools in this Country, which favour, in a high degree, the attainment of knowledge, not only of words, but of things, or the ideas for which words stand. Of this description are a book for New Hampshire children, written by Mr Hildreth, Colburn intellectual Arithmetick, and Willard's and Woodbridge Geography

School Report

These books bring down the subjects of which they treat to a level with the capacities of children, and are admirably calculated to assist both the memory and the understanding in the attainment of knowledge. They are considered by your Committee as highly valuable improvements in the methods of communicating instruction.

There is one difficulty, however which tends to prevent our keeping pace with the rapid march of improvement in these respects. The difficulty is that of frequently introducing new books into the schools, and, in this way, adding too heavy a tax to that which is required to support them.

Your Committee have not been unmindful of this difficulty; and from a regard to it they have forborne to recommend any new book during the year past; as the book for New Hampshire children and Colburn's Arithmetick had been previously introduced; - but as they are convinced that Willard's first lessons for beginners in Geography and Woodbridge's Geography are much better calculated for the instruction of youth, than the geographies that have been heretofore used, they would warmly recommend the these should be purchased, whenever new geographies are needed in our schools.

Your Committee would also recommend that not only the book for New Hampshire children but Colburn's Arithmetick should be more generally introduced into the schools in this town, not to the exclusion of other systems of Arithmetick, but as an important preparation for the profitable study of them.

In reference to the improvement made in our schools during the year past, your Committee feel happy in being able to state that appearances are favourable. In most of the schools a good degree of attention has been paid to correctness in reading; and in some of them unwearied pains have been taken to make the pupils understand what they read. The natural consequence is that a very respectable number of good readers are found in our schools, while, at the same pleasing evidence has been exhibited of desirable improvement in the various other branches of study which are attended to in our schools. But while your Committee feel happy in being able to speak thus favourably, they are bound in duty to state, that defects have been observed, which need to be amended: - defects, some of which have been repeatedly alluded to in former reports of this kind, but of which it is highly necessary that our schools should be reminded untill they are completely reformed.

School Report

The habit of reading and reciting in a low and indistinct tone of voice is very injurious to the character of a scholar.

And it is greatly to be desired that both parents and children especially our young men should be more deeply impressed with the importance of attention to the study of English Grammar.

The time has been when neglect of this study was not considered a very important defect in a common education; but this time is now passed by. A generation is coming forward in which none will be considered even as passable schollars, who ignorant of this important branch of an English education. A more particular view of the state of our schools during the year past may be had by attending to the following statement of the number of schollars and the particular branches of study to which they have been attending viz;

|---|---|
| Whole number of schollars | 660 |
| Average number about three fifths of this number. | |
| In the higher reading classes | 291 |
| Writers | 398 |
| Schollars — In the study of Arithmetick | 298 |
| In the study of English Grammar | 107 |
| In the study of Geography | 97 |

Report of School Committee — We, whose names are undersigned, having been appointed a committee to visit and examine the state of the schools in this town, report that we have attended to the duties of our appointment, as far as circumstances would permit.

All the schools have been visited, except that in District No 5 from which your committee have had no information respecting the beginning or close of the school, if they have had any.

In all cases, when your committee have had notice, and other circumstances would admit, the schools, both in the summer and winter, have been examined near the beginning and close of their respective terms; but either by want of notice, or by some other unavoidable cause this has not been practicable in all cases.

Your committee feel happy in being able to state, that in general the schools, both in the summer and winter terms, have been furnished with good instructors, who have manifested laudable efforts for the improvement of their pupils, though not in all cases with equal success.

It adds, in no small degree to the pleasure of your committee, to be able to state that eight of the schools, both in summer and winter, have been furnished with teachers by our own town.

The reports made by the several instructors, respecting the state of their respective schools, are more complete this than in any former year.

It is hoped that this important branch of their duty will be punctually attended to by instructors in future.

From an inspection of these reports and a recurrence to former reports, your committee make the following statement — Ten of the summer schools were taught by females and one by a master. The whole number of scholars who attended school in summer is 526 who attended to the following branches of study, namely,

|---|---|
| To reading the whole number | |
| To spelling the whole number except beginners | |
| To writing | 194 |
| To Colburn's Intellectual Arithmetic | 133 |
| Summer School | |
| To English Grammar | 49 |
| To Geography | 74 |
| To Natural Philosophy | 3 |
| To History | 7 |
| To Rhetorick | 7 |

The winter schools were all taught by masters. The whole number of scholars who have attended them is 665 and the branches of study to which they have attended are as follows namely

|---|---|
| To reading the whole number | |
| To spelling the whole number except beginners | |
| To writing | 337 |
| To Colburn's Intellectual Arithmetic | 222 |
| To Practical Arithmetic | 128 |
| To English Grammar | 143 |
| Winter School To Geography | 135 |
| To Natural Philosophy | 21 |
| To History | 22 |
| To Rhetorick | 4 |
| To Chemistry | 4 |
| To Astronomy | 1 |

It is with pleasure that your committee have noticed that a considerable attention has been paid to the purchase of books recommended by them in the report of last year, as the number of Colburn's Arithmetic and Woodbridge's Geography very considerably increased during the past year. As the number of all our districts have done well it is hoped that they will still continue to do well in this respect.

By the aid of these excellent books, our children at a very early age, may be instructed in the knowledge of Arithmetic and Geography in an easy and familiar manner, which is much less laborious, and much less burdensome to their memories than the method formerly used; at the same time that the way is prepared, by this aid to pursue these respective studies to greater advantage in future.

With respect to the numerous improvements that are continually making in the method of teaching schools, and the excellent school books that are from year to year published and highly recommended, your committee feel themselves bound regulate their desire to introduce such books and improvements by what they conceive to be the ability of the people to sustain them.

In closing their report, it is with great pleasure that your committee are able to state that a very respectable number of the schools both in the summer and winter, have appeared to good advantage on examination, and have exhibited evidence of very laudable attention on the part of the scholars as well as the teachers.

It would be pleasing to stop here; but for the future benefit of the schools your committee are bound to add that there are still several things in most of the schools which need to be reformed.

There are still too many instances of low, indistinct, and careless reading. There are still too many who do not pay that attention to the pauses and to the sense of what they read, in which the greatest excellence in reading principally consists. There are also still to many instances in which scholars (not to say teachers) appear to think they have acted their well, when they have repeated readily a long lesson which has been set them, without giving any evidence that they understand, or even attend to the meaning of what they repeat.

These are errors which need to be reformed. But after making due allowance for these and other faults which have been noticed, it may still be said with truth, that our schools have done well. It is hoped they will do better. It is hoped that our children will make greater and greater advancement in knowledge and virtue and true religion; that when the rising generation shall come on the stage of action, it may truly be said of the people of this favoured land:— "Happy is that people that is in such a case; yea happy is that people whose God is the Lord".

Declaration of vote — Francis D. Cranstall, Edmund Rand, and Daniel Fellows having a majority of all the votes cast were declared duly elected selectmen for the town of Deerfield for the year ensuing.

Vote to have school report read — Voted that the report of the superintending committee of schools in this town for the year 1830 be now read.

Report — "We whose names are undersigned having been appointed a Committee to visit and examine the schools in this town, report, that all the schools have been visited, with the exception of District No. 5 from which your Committee have had no notice either of the commencement or close of the school, if one has been kept in it. The severity of the weather has prevented the examination of one or two of the schools at the close.

Those that have been examined, both summer and winter, have generally appeared well; and exhibited evidence of laudable diligence in the scholars, and of ability and fidelity in the instructors. Ten of the summer schools were kept by females, and one by a master, who also kept it in the autumn and winter.

Though there has been some complaint in one or two instances, yet it may be stated as a general fact, that the schools have been furnished the year past with able and faithful instructors.

The studies that have been attended to in the several schools are reading, spelling, the powers and sounds of the letters in the English alphabet, abbreviations, the powers of letters used for numbers, writing, arithmetick, English Grammar, Geography, Geometry, Natural Philosophy, Chemistry, Rhetorick, History, Astronomy, Surveying, Latin Language

The numbers that have attended to several of these exercises will appear in the following summary of the state of the schools both in summer and in winter, made out from the reports which have been furnished by the several instructors, supplying the deficiency of one or two that have failed by recur to former reports.

Average of schollars attending school

The average number of schollars that have attended school is about two thirds of the whole number.

Having given our general approbation of the state of the schools, it may be important to remark, that there are still deficiencies, which ought to be remedied. Too many are still deficient in reading. Many do not read sufficiently loud, nor take due care to articulate distinctly:- and many more fail to pay that attention to the sense of what they read which is indispensably necessary to enable them to read with propriety, and to the acceptance of those who hear them. To be a good reader is one of the most important, and at the same time one of the most difficult attainments in a school education.

This branch of learning is deserving of the particular attention of every instructer and every schollar, as it facilitates the progress in every other branch of learning. As none can read well without understanding what they read, the habit of close attention, to the meaning of every author they peruse will gradually enlarge the mind and make every succeeding study more easy and intelligable.

Similar remarks might be made respecting various other studies that are pursued. It is exceedingly important that schollars should be thorough in every branch of study to which they attend. It is much better to be slow, and sure, and thorough, than to hurry over a multitude of studies, without obtaining a thorough knowledge of any of them.

As very great improvements are making in various parts of our land in the management of common schools it is very important that we should aim as far as possible to keep pace with these improvements. It is becoming more and more important that district committees should be very particular with regard to the qualifications of the instructers they employ.

And the superintending committee will find it necessary to be more particular in the examination of instructers they recommend; as some who would have been considered well qualified to teach a few years ago would now be found deficient unless they have kept pace with the improvements of the day.

It is fully important that every effort should be made for the improving the means of education in our common schools, since the stability and permanency of our free and enlightened form of government very much depends on the virtue and intelligence of the people in general. So long as the great mass of the people are virtuous and well informed, there is very little danger that any enemy to liberty and good government will be successful in any attempt to infringe upon the rights and freedom; but should we ever arrive to that deplorable crisis, when ignorance and vice, and irreligion gain the ascendency in our nation, there would be the greatest reason to fear that the fair and flourishing tree of liberty, which now overshadows, enriches, and adorns our happy land, would be plucked up and destroyed root and branch.

In countries where tyrants and despots bear sway, ignorance and vice may serve the purposes of those minions of the human race, but the sons and daughters of republicans must be well informed, virtuous and pious; or they can never fill the places of their excellent predecessors, by whose wisdom, and virtue, and courage, and intelligence our independence and freedom were achieved.

That they have attended the duties assigned them so far as circumstances would permit, and are happy to be able to state that schools have been kept in all the districts by females, in the summer term and in all, excepting one, in the winter term by Masters.

All those schools have been visited once and most of them twice in each term, with the exception of two, which were omitted in consequence of the inclemency of the weather, or other engagements. The number of scholars who have attended school the past year and their various studies, as near as can be estimated by supplying the deficiency of a few returns by a recurrence to those made before this year are as follows.

Your committee have the pleasure to report laudable improvement in the schools in general both in summer and winter terms. Some very pleasing specimens of penmanship, propriety in reading, and readiness and correctness in various recitations have been exhibited at examinations. There are faults however still remaining which need to be corrected in most of the schools. Many of the scholars have not yet been sufficiently prevailed upon to read sufficiently loud and distinctly, nor to pay a proper regard to the pauses, and the meaning of what they read. Many have fail to speak so as to be distinctly heard when they cite in Grammar, Geography, and other lessons assigned them. The unusual severity of the weather and sickness have prevented so general attendance of the scholars during the winter term as has been usual.

This undoubtedly has been no small obstacle to improvement. It is probable that scholars in general who attend school constantly, will make more than double the progress of those, who are absent half their time; as the latter, not only lose half their time, but their minds are diverted from their studies they become discouraged by falling in the rear of their class, and hurry over their lessons in a more superficial manner than they otherwise would. Hence the high advantage to scholars of attending constantly and punctually, and avoiding absence from school for a single day when it is not absolutely necessary.

Difficulties in District No. 3

One other obstacle to improvement has occurred in one of the districts which your committee would gladly pass over in silence did not an imperious sense of duty require them to state their views on the subject. From information on which they rely, they have been informed to their very deep regret that in District No. 3 difficulties of a very unpleasant nature have arisen in the course of the winter term, on which, as regard to the general benefit of the schools compels them to make some remarks on the present occasion.

Of all the evils incident to schools, insubordination of the scholars to the rules prescribed to the instructor is one of the greatest. Money expended in the support of schools, will be worse than wasted if the teachers employed in them cannot be obeyed.

Should there be any reasonable objection against the course pursued by the teacher the law provides a remedy and points out the way in which such difficulties may be removed without the interference of the scholars.

So long therefore, as no legal steps are taken to remove such difficulties, while they exist the scholars are bound to submit to the regulations of the schools. Should the time ever arrive in which scholars are permitted to abuse and insult their teachers and refuse obedience to their reasonable requirements we may renounce all hope of those high advantages which they are designed to afford. Your committee are persuaded that all or nearly all of the supporters of the school in this district highly disapprove and deeply regret these unwarrantable proceedings; - and they refrain from any further remarks upon them, in the hope that the young men themselves, who have erred, will be sensible of their error; and, in future guard against a similar misbehaviour. For the honour of Dunfield, for the reputation of our young men, and above all for the best interests our schools, it is greatly to be desired that a similar occurrence may never again be known in this town. Every individual who feels a regard for the welfare of the rising generation must earnestly desire this; as all must be sensible, that the happiness and welfare of our children, and indeed of our country, very much depends on the proper management and prosperity of our schools.

It cannot be necessary that your committee should descant on the invaluable benefits of an early education. To an enlightened people its advantages must be obvious. Few are so unwise as to expect a rich and plentiful harvest when seed time has been neglected. What makes the difference between the members of a civilized community and the roving multitudes of untutored savages? what but the benign influence of an early education? Further, what makes the difference between the inhabitants of this favoured land and some of the enlightened nations of Europe. They abound perhaps more than we do in men who have made very high attainments in knowledge. The advantages which we enjoy in comparison with them must arise from the general diffusion of knowledge among the people.

In those countries the rich, the noble, and the privileged enjoy greater advantages for the acquirement of knowledge than can be enjoyed by plain republicans in such a country as ours; but the misery of those countries is, that the great body of the people are wholly or almost destitute of the means of education. In such communities, therefore, knowledge, which when generally diffused is one of the greatest blessings to a nation, becomes rather an engine in the hands of the few to lord it over and oppress the more numerous class who possess very little information.

Indeed should we enquire why the inhabitants of South America have been unable to establish themselves under such a wise, free, permanent and regular form of government as that of the United States even after they had thrown off the yoke of a foreign master the reason will be found in the defective nature of their education. Had all classes of people among them been favoured with the same means of education as they long been in this country their circumstances and prospects would undoubtedly have been much more promising than they now are.

We cannot therefore, too much admire the wisdom of our ancestors, in the establishment of common schools in every town, village and district in the country as fast as it was settled, for the general diffusion of knowledge among all classes of the community. It is to this high privilege, under God, that we are in a great measure to ascribe our ability to obtain our liberty and independence; and to support and defend our rights and freedom, in opposition to all the attempts that have been made to assail them. Little did the tyrannical rulers of England think, when, by their oppression, intolerance and persecution, they drove our ancestors from the land of their nativity, that they were transporting into America a race of men, who, by the wisdom of their constitution, were destined to nourish in the posterity those seeds of virtue, knowledge and the genuine principles of freedom and good government, which would prepare them one day to bid defiance to their gigantic power, and establish themselves under the wisest and best form of government the world ever knew.

But it is exceedingly important to be remembered that, if we would preserve the same inheritance, which has been transmitted to us by other fathers, we must stedfastly adhere to the principles, and habits, and wise institutions, which have been productive of such immense good to our nation. Let every friend to his country then, let every genuine republican feel, that the only solid foundation of security of life, liberty, and permanent good government must be laid in the early instruction of our youth in the principles of virtue, piety, and useful literature.

And let all the sons and daughters of Republicans feel, that the best return they can make to their parents for all their efforts for their advantage, will be in constant and unwearied exertions, on their part to improve their minds in useful knowledge, and in those principles of virtue and goodness, which may fit them to be the supporters and ornaments of society.

All which is respectfully submitted by

Report of School Committee to be now read voted that the report of the superintending school committee be now read

Report

The Committee, appointed to visit and superintend the schools in this town, submit the following as their report. In the course of the year past schools have been taught in all the twelve districts; in the summer by female, in the winter by male instructors. The committee had not notice given them of the beginning or close of either the schools in District No. 5; they have not consequently been visited. It would give your Committee great pleasure to be able to state that there has been as general and punctual attendance as the great interests of the rising generation demand. It is highly important, that the minds of the people should be generally and deeply impressed with the value of an early and good education, and the consequent importance of a constant and punctual attendance of all our youth on the several schools so far circumstances will permit. But there is reason to fear, that the minds of many people are not yet sufficiently awakened to a sense of their duty and interest in this respect. Your committee learn from the report of the instructors the whole number of whose school was eighty, that the average number which attended was less than thirty eight. There is ground to fear, that in several other schools, the average attendance has not materially varied from this proportion. Some allowance should be made for the difficulty of the season; but it is believed that the minds of many need to be awakened to a more lively sense of the value of the privileges they enjoy. From some of the instructors reports of the state of their schools have not been received. Supplying this deficiency by a recurrence to former reports, the following may be considered as a nearly correct statement of the whole number of schollars, that have attended school the past winter and the various branches of study, in which their time has been employed.

|---|---|---|---|
| Whole number of schollars | 603 | English Grammar | 103 |
| Males | 342 | Rhetorick | 2 |
| Females | 261 | Natural Philosophy | 14 |
| Of these have attended to | | Chemistry | 4 |
| Reading | 603 | Surveying | 1 |
| Writing | 350 | Geometry | 1 |
| Arithmetick | 302 | Astronomy | 9 |
| Modern Geography | 132 | Algebra | 1 |
| Ancient Geography | 1 | Latin Language | 1 |
| History | 15 | | |

It is with pleasure that your Committee are able to state as a general fact, that the schools have been furnished with good instructors both in the summer and winter terms; and that several of the schools in both these terms have appeared to good advantage. There are some exceptions however to this general statement. So great was the dissatisfaction in District No. 4 that the teacher was induced at the time when the school term was very near being completed. This school was not visited at the close and no report has been received from it. While your Committee state with pleasure, that the evidence, exhibited by a very respectable number of schollars of rapid improvement in their various studies has been highly gratifying to them, it is their duty to add that deficiencies have been observed in several of the schools; and, indeed, great improvement is needed by many of the schollars in all the schools, in the manner of reading, attention to the pauses and the proper tones of voice according to the sense of what they read. Many good readers would be still better, would they read louder and more distinctly. The fault of speaking in a low tone of voice is still more observable in the various recitations, in which it is very important that all the answers should be distinctly heard, that the scholars may receive the whole credit which is due to them for their diligence. But perhaps there is no one deficiency in any one of our schools more to be regretted than a disregard to that strict attention to order which is so indispensable to improvement in knowledge. Unless proper order and discipline can be maintained in schools there must be an end to all hope of rapid improvement. And your Committee regret being under the necessity to state, that in a few instances, a suitable regard to the authority of the teacher has not been manifested when the reasonableness and mildness of the rules prescribed for the government of the school precluded all just ground of complaint. The moment when the members of our schools shall feel themselves authorized to dictate to their teachers what rules of discipline are proper to be adopted, or to set themselves up as judges, when these rules are violated, and when this course is encouraged by parents or others, all hope of benefit from our schools must be relinquished. It is pleasing to observe a manly spirit of independence in our youth. We wish to see them, as they advance to manhood to exhibit the genuine spirit of republicans. But it is important to be rembered, that those persons make the best, the most consistent, firm and unyielding republicans, who have been the habit of cheerfully submitting to wholesome restraints while they were young. This, indeed, is the principle, which gives the republican government of this country the advantage over every other, which has been established in modern times. We have the advantage over them not only in the general diffusion of knowledge among all classes of our citizens; not only in the early and superior education of our youth, but in their being habituated from their childhood to submit cheerfully, not to despotick and tyranical mandates but to good and wholesome laws made for their benefit. Do we desire then that our children should receive the full benefit of an early, correct and virtuous education? - do we desire that our country and its free republican principles should receive that firm and uniform support which the regular, virtuous habits of the rising generation are calculated to afford it? - do we desire that our beloved [illegible] try should triumph over the sneers of those who have compared the duration of a republican government to that of a while burch stake? - Then let us cherish in our youth the habit of cheerful submission to all wholesome restraints, whether in families or in schools, or in that relation in which they stand to the most excellent of governments. Let us check the first appearance of the oposite spirit, as we value their best good, the best good of our country, and our comfort, honour, and felicity. While we exult in the hope, that the genuine principles of republicanism will continue to be the glory of our nation, and will be diffused far and wide; - while we cherish the hope that our sister Republicks in South America and Mexico will speedily enjoy those advantages of general, early and correct education in the principals of virtue and good government which will secure to them the permanent enjoyment of their liberties; - while, with still greater pleasure, we rejoice in the hope, that our principles of freedom, tempered with a disposition to submit to good and wholesome laws, will extend to Europe, be established in Africa, and extend to the millions of Asia; - while we cherish this hope let us exhibit to them the splendid example of our revered ancestors, whose wisdom is most conspicuous in training up their offspring in those habits of virtue, piety, and cheerful submission to all lawful authority, which have prepared us for the enjoyment of privileges, which have fallen to the lot of no other nation under heaven. Let us such bright examples be followed by every parent, by every master, by every guardian in our land, till, written in blazing characters, they shall shine forth in all their glory, and their light never be impeded, till every country and nation in the world shall be illuminated. All which is respectfully submitted
